INT. U.S. ATTORNEY'S OFFICE - NIGHT

Case files.

Coffee rings.

A fan that does not cool anything.

The AUSA stares at Judge Delgado's bail order like the paper personally insulted her.

A DEA AGENT stands in the doorway holding a folder.

DEA AGENT

You still mad at paper?

AUSA

I'm mad at math.

Nothing about that ruling adds up.

He steps in and drops the folder.

Bank statements.

Wire transfers.

One offshore account with too many clean zeros.

40.

DEA AGENT

Same week Delgado signs low bond for your people, this lights up.

The AUSA flips pages.

Stops.

AUSA

This enough to move on him?

DEA AGENT

Not enough to win.

Enough to get ourselves noticed trying.

She looks at the board of mugshots.

Hot Shot.

Jamal.

Young.

Baby.

Church.

One corner empty where Christie used to be before somebody pulled her photo after she stopped showing up.

The AUSA circles DELGADO on her legal pad hard enough to tear it.

AUSA

Then we move careful.

DEA AGENT

Careful get people buried in cases like this.

AUSA

Fast gets cases killed.

Pick your poison.
